Threat on Belgian Lives Is Made By Supporters

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—Supporters of Patrice Lumumba who rule Oriental Province today threatened to kill an unspecified number of Belgian hostages unless the deposed premier is freed.

They made the threat in a telegram to President Joseph Kasavubu and Col. Joseph Mobutu, the Congolese army commander whose troops arrested Lumumba and clamped him into prison.

Dag Takes Action On Situation

To Protect 2,000 Whites In Congo From Death Threat

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld took urgent measures today to avert threatened mass reprisals against Belgians by the supporters of Patrice Lumumba, deposed and imprisoned Congo premier.

The secretary-general received word during the night that Bernard Salumu, leader of the Lumumba forces at Stanleyville, had threatened to arrest all Belgians in Oriental Province and start beheading them unless Lumumba is released within 48 hours.

He immediately cabled his special representative in Leopoldville, Indian diplomat Rajeshwar Dayal, for a full report and what is being done to protect the 2,000 whites in Oriental Province.

He also called his 18-nation Congo advisory committee into session. This committee is made up of all the countries which have troop contingents in the U.N. Congo force.

Hammarskjöld told the Security Council early today that he had received "deeply disturbing" news from Stanleyville, but he did not give details.

The 11-nation council meets again tonight to continue its debate on the new Congo crisis.

Before Hammarskjöld spoke, the Congo's U. N. delegate, Mario Cardoso, accused both the Soviet Union and the West of trying to stir up mutiny in his country. He warned the United Nations not to force aid or advice on his people. Cardoso leveled the blanket warning at a special night session of the Security Council on the Congo crisis. He spoke after the Soviet Union and Britain had blamed each other for the chaos gripping the infant African state.

Takes Family to Florida

Kennedy Relaxing His Pace After Talks With Stevenson

WASHINGTON (AP)—President-elect John F. Kennedy, relaxing his pace after inviting Adlai Stevenson and two others to join his new administration, takes his wife and new son to Florida today.

Before the early afternoon departure for Palm Beach, Kennedy planned a round of conferences with callers at his Georgetown home. But only two were listed, compared with the 16 he saw in a busy day Thursday.

The schedule called for breakfast with Rep. Hale Boggs, D-La., and a meeting with Dr. Walt W. Rostow, a specialist in Soviet and U. S. economies. Rostow, now with Massachusetts Institute of Technology, has been mentioned for high office in the new administration.

Stevenson was offered the job of U. S. ambassador to the United Nations. Although he gave the impression he will accept, he withheld an immediate decision. He said he wanted to talk the matter over further with Kennedy but emphasized that "I have tried to make it clear that I want to help."

Kennedy announced the offer to Stevenson from his doorstep and described the U. N. post as one of the three or four most important in the administration.

Then he said of Stevenson: "I can think of no American who would fill this responsibility with greater distinction." Earlier, Kennedy offered government jobs to two other callers, Byron Leslie (Whizzer) White of Denver and John J. Hooker Jr. of Nashville, Tenn. Both said they hadn't decided yet.

Just what was offered them wasn't announced. White, a Denver lawyer and long-time friend of Kennedy, has been mentioned for the job of attorney general or solicitor general. Hooker, also an attorney and a Kennedy campaign worker, was rumored to have been offered a Justice Department job.

In another major doorstep announcement, Kennedy said he will ask Congress to establish a department of urban affairs—a new cabinet position to deal with such problems as slum clearance.

US Increases Gold Supply 300 Million

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States has increased its gold supply for the first time in several months with a $300 million bullion purchase from the International Monetary Fund.

The fund said Thursday it sold the gold so it could get dollars to invest in short term treasury securities. It said it wanted to convert some of its gold reserves into interest-earning treasury IOU's.

The timing of the transaction was a happy one for the United States when the American gold supply was at its lowest level in more than 20 years.

Foreign nations have bought about $1.4 billion of U.S. gold since the end of June. This has caused some worry that a run on gold might develop.

Foreign purchases had cut the U.S. gold supply to $17,882,000,000 as of last Monday. The new purchase pushed the total American supply back above $18,177,000,000.

Asked if there might be a pitched battle, Souvanna said: "It is possible but we are trying to avoid bloodshed."

Col. Kouprasith's maneuver Thursday was announced as a stroke to prevent a possible attack or coup by pro-Communist Pathet Lao guerrillas who have been waging sporadic civil war for six years against the government of this kingdom segment of former French Indochina.

They took over bloodlessly during the night. Apparently there was not even a scuffle.

Mob Violence Greets DeGaulle In Algeria

Flood Threatens Texas

Southwest Hit By Heavy Snow

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (AP)—One of the heaviest and earliest snowstorms in recent years has stranded motorists, isolated communities and cut off communications through wide areas of the Southwest.

The storm blanketed Arizona and New Mexico with up to 15 inches of snow in some areas while a freezing drizzle preceding the storm threatened a major flood in East Texas.

New Mexico was the hardest hit in the three-state area. All major highways in the state were closed stranding many motorists.

At Santa Rosa a 7½-inch snowfall closed U. S. 66 west to Albuquerque. Motorists filled up all motel and hotel space in the town of 2,200. The town opened up the high school gymnasium, a theater and the City Hall to give travelers sleeping space for the night.

Albuquerque and El Paso, Tex., surrounded by mountain passes were virtually isolated. Albuquerque received two inches and El Paso had four. Highways leading from the two cities were closed to all except emergency vehicles. All airline flights were grounded and railroad service was running five to six hours behind.

At El Paso, on the Mexican border, Texas Western College and the El Paso Public Schools closed today. No classes were held Thursday at Hobbs, Melrose, House and Roswell on the east side of New Mexico.

Electric and telephone service was constantly disrupted. More than 100 telephone poles were knocked down between Tatum and Lovington in the southeastern corner.

Iceing and power failures knocked out two microwave relay towers in central New Mexico, interrupting telephone, telegraph and television transmissions between Albuquerque and Roswell during the night.

New Mexico State Police lost contact with its mobile units when its main transmitter on 10,678-foot Sandia Peak east of Albuquerque was iced over by the driving snow.

White Pupils Escorted To Classrooms

In Wake of Threats Against Those Ignoring Boycott

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Federal marshals escorted all white pupils to classes at the William Frantz school today in the wake of threats and intimidations against those ignoring the school boycott.

Marshall Edward J. Pettibon confirmed reports that deputies would escort white children as well as the lone Negro girl to the newly integrated school.

Eight white children—compared to 14 Thursday and 23 earlier this week—turned out at Frantz this morning in 45-degree temperatures.

There were no demonstrators in front of the school today. A cluster of five women huddled in a yard across the street, but there were none of the usual taunts, boos or jeers when the children arrived for classes.

Mary Sand, president of Save Our Schools, anticipated the drop in white attendance.

Band of About 150

Cuban Insurgents Continue Fighting

HAVANA (AP)—A band of about 150 armed anti-Castro insurgents was reported fighting in central Cuba today after a new landing near Corralillo on the north coast 120 miles east of Havana.

Although the Armed Forces Ministry denounced the report as a "counterrevolutionary rumor," sources opposed to Prime Minister Fidel Castro insisted it was true.

Persons arriving in Havana from Matanzas, west of Corralillo, said the invaders have been engaging Castro soldiers and militiamen in sporadic battles the last two days. Some claimed to have seen truckloads of troops diverted to the area while en route to the Escambray Mountains to fight other insurgents.

Two militiamen were reported killed by one such band which came out of the mountains on a raid for food Thursday and clashed with troops at Cumana-yagua, one of the gateways to the rugged range.

This report—one of several concerning armed clashes—came amid these other developments: Authorities at Cienfuegos, near the south central coast, announced one person was killed and four injured in an unsuccessful attempt of a group of counterrevolutionaries to seize a Cubana airliner in flight and force the pilot to fly out of the country.

A Cuban diplomatic note to the United States charged that a doubleheader space rocket, which fell in fragments near Holguin in eastern Cuba 10 days ago and killed a cow was a part of a "tremendous plot" of aggression.

The attempt to commandeer the airliner was balked, Cienfuegos officials said, when the pilot crashed landed the plane during a dramatic airborne gun battle.

Home Rule Support Plan Trip Marred

Special Police Battle Thousands Of Demonstrators

ALGIERS (AP)—Mob violence erupted in Algeria today as President Charles de Gaulle flew into the rebellious territory wearing a general's uniform to whip up support for his plan for home rule.

Special riot police battled thousands of demonstrators in the packed streets of Algiers and tough soldiers moved into the great city square of Oran, 220 miles northwest of Algiers, to control a mob of thousands.

A call for a general strike proclaimed by the Front for French Algeria, largest group of diehard settlers, was heeded to a large extent in most big cities.

But De Gaulle stubbornly went ahead with his tour, pressing his plan that could even lead to Algeria's independence. That is what the settlers fear most, for they would be far outnumbered by Algeria's Moslem majority.

De Gaulle's first stop was Ain Temouchent, a city of 25,000, about half European.

As he stepped from his car, scattered cries of greeting were drowned out by a roar of "Algeria is French." Police said 5,000 people stood in a chill downpour to shout their protests.

De Gaulle smiled thinly and strode erect to City Hall. After he had gone inside, an army colonel addressed the crowd through a loudspeaker. He told them to "demonstrate peacefully."

De Gaulle is to spend six days trying to persuade the population his policy is the right one. His presence, as the symbol and author of a policy they hate, stirred diehards to riot in Oran and Algiers.

In Oran, relative quiet was restored when soldiers replaced hated riot police squads. Tear gas was fired on the mobs in both places.

The army also moved into some areas of Algiers shortly after noon. Soldiers set up gun emplacements near the university, deserted by students who took to the streets.

Take Down Fund Drive Thermometer

Due to interference with the Christmas decorations it has become necessary to remove the United Fund thermometer from the courthouse lawn, according to J. W. Donnell, drive chairman.

After its removal, periodic releases to the public of the progress of United Fund receipts will be made through the press, television and radio.

Based on available information it is anticipated that this year's drive, when totally completed, will reach approximately $61,000, some of which actually will not be received by the fund before February or March 1961. Although this will probably exceed collections of any previous year, it is still far short of the goal, which was finally established at $79,000.

One bright spot connected with the drive is that overhead costs of conducting the campaign this year were reduced more than $3,000, and that additional amount will become available for distribution to the participating agencies.

The drive this year was conducted entirely by local citizens in rent free office space made available by the County Court.

Gifts will be accepted throughout the year and anyone desiring to contribute may do so in person or by mail to the United Fund office, second floor, courthouse.

Swift Rebound from Defeat

Left-leaning Paratroopers Seize Control of Vientiane

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—Red kerkieffed paratroopers of left-leaning Capt. Kong Le seized control of this capital today in a swift rebound from apparent defeat.

It was the second military takeover by rival paratroop factions in 24 hours but neutralist Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma continued to preside over the government in his cream stucco palace through all the changes.

Col. Kouprasith Aphy and the anti-Communist leaders of Vientiane's garrison who seized control of the capital in a pre-dawn strike Thursday, were reported bottled up by Kong Le's 2nd battalion paratroopers at Chinaino army camp outside the capital today.

Kouprasith's 3rd battalion got the upper hand temporarily in a brief clash with pro-Communist elements of the 2nd battalion at Camp Chinaino Thursday.

Wearing white armbands and flying white flags to denote their support of neutralist Souvanna, they swarmed over the capital in jeeps, tanks, trucks and staff cars.

Walnut Shells For Jet Engine

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—A jet engine will swallow almost anything, and as a result often suffers from that tired run down feeling.

There are numerous cures, but the cheapest so far is a dose of walnut shells.

Jet doctors have found they can restore a patient's zip by feeding shells through the air intake. Once inside, the shells prove just abrasive enough to clean out the accumulation of jet fuel grease, bird feathers, sand and old newspapers.

Previously a sick jet engine had to be torn down, cleaned and hand polished, a lengthy and costly operation. Now the cure can be effected in four minutes with a $9.99 sack of walnut shells.

Optimists See Color Slides On Sweden

Miss Glenda Rhoads, who has returned from Sweden where she was one of the International Farm Youth Exchange program group this summer, was the speaker at Optimist Club Tuesday noon at Bothwell Hotel.

Miss Rhoads showed slides she had taken herself and told about each picture. The homes in Sweden are usually painted red or yellow. One of the main industries is mining, she said, and it was found that a red paint could be made very cheaply from the waste at the copper mines, prompting people to painting their houses red.

Glenda stayed in three different homes while in Sweden.

The 4-H Clubs in Sweden are very active, she said, but they do not have competition like they have here, such as the Achievement Day.

Every school has a painting of the activity of the community. In one school where Glenda had a picture was a logging scene. If girls don't want to go to higher school they take home economics, and boys who do not go to higher schools take agriculture.

Glenda's stay in Sweden took her from the south part clear up to the north part and here were the Lapland people. She had pictures of these, too, one couple who had 2,000 reindeer. The reindeer are branded like the cattle in this country, each man having his own brand which is cut in the reindeer's ears.

The speaker was introduced by Clyde Butler, program chairman. Jay Lazerson, president, presided over the meeting, and invocation was given by Claude Boul. Charles Hanna led the singing and Miss Lillian Fox was accompanist.

Ed Mitchell, chairman of the Christmas tree project, stated that the Christmas trees were now on sale.

A Christmas Sermon Chapter 31

(Reprinted with special permission from the publishers of "Ring Around the Moon.")

(With excerpts from Chapter 30)

"It was Christmas Eve. The ground was white outside, and the biting air rang with the sound of Christmas carols as the people of Hawthorn went from house to house, visiting relatives and friends, or made their way toward the Presbyterian Church for evening service.

The Reverend McNeil stood in the pulpit and watched the members of his congregation enter. He looked at each face with a feeling of gratitude in his heart. They were substantial people, hard-working men and women who read the Bible and who attended services regularly. It was to these simple people that Reverend McNeil had chosen to minister, and he was proud of them.

When he saw Basil and Uncle Bill enter, he was stunned. For over a year, he had prayed that Basil might find his way to church, and from there to peace with himself and with his God.

"Thank God," he murmured fervently. Part of his prayer was answered, and he had a fighting chance, this very night, to win the rest.

Everyone, he knew had come to hear the ancient story of the birth of the Christ Child, a story of peace and good will, and that was the story that the minister had planned to tell. But the presence of Basil Thayer, who so badly needed hope and understanding, seemed to him to necessitate a different kind of sermon.

Uncle Bill parted with Basil and took his customary place in a rear pew that was reserved for the Negroes. Most of the men and women in that section were elderly slaves; the younger blacks rarely visited the church. They seemed to feel, because of their bondage, that there was no just and fair God.

The Reverend McNeil began slowly, steadily.

"In the spring, the hawthorn, with its glossy leaves and clusters of white flowers, charms man with its peaceful beauty. The days of its bloom, of its loveliness, are the happy days of the hawthorn . . . We can compare these days to the time in a man's life when he is surrounded by friends and loved ones, when he sees, grows, and prospers, and the fruit of his labor is rewarded.

"But then, winter comes to the hawthorn. It no longer blooms, and in the place of the white flowers, thorns predominate. The hawthorn is ugly.

"Winter comes, too, into the life of man. And instead of lifting blossoms, instead of offering to a sunny sky the fruit of his labor, man strikes out at his God, at his fellow man with the thorns of hate.

"The hawthorn tree, because it is a product of nature has a faith and a hope in its very roots; it 'knows' that summer will come again, and that the time of thorns is to be endured.

"Man is not so fortunate. Because he is a creature with free will and has roots in his own nature rather than in the earth, he needs to be reassured, to understand the time of thorns before he can accept it.

"God, unlike man, is incapable of holding malice, or demanding unjust vengeance. When, with humility and simplicity, we pray: 'Forgive me, Father, for my transgressions. I surrender my troubles and cares to You,' then the warm rains fall gently in our life and spring is born within us once again—a spring-time vastly more refreshing and more beautiful than the ones we remember in the recollective innocence of childhood."

The members of the congregation glanced meaningfully at one another, exchanging their feelings of discomfort. This was not the kind of sermon that they had expected.

The minister smiled, reading their glances and their thoughts.

"This is not the message for which you were prepared on this night, the eve of the celebration of the Birth of Christ. Neither, my friends, is this the message that I had prepared. But it occurred to me, as I watched you pass into this building, that the peace and good will of the Christmas story has been told so many times . . . And peace and good will are not the only messages that Christmas should bring.

"Christmas is, more than anything else, a time for hope, and that is the message that I wish to bring to you tonight.

"Ask yourselves this question: 'Why did God send his only Son to earth, clothed with human flesh?' You must answer, I think, that it was not only in order to give man peace and good will. Not, indeed, to give the world an excuse to celebrate.

"God sent Jesus Christ to assure man, as the hawthorn is assured, that he will be reborn. If man hopes in Jesus Christ as the hawthorn tree hopes in the coming spring, he can survive the winter of thorns and discontent. He need not despair . . ."

Basil sat quietly, barely breathing. The sermon, he knew, was for him. It was for him alone that the man in the pulpit had changed the direction of his Christmas eve message. And these were the words that Basil longed to hear.

He thought, too, of another whose words had been inspired by the "common haw tree." He saw again the sweet, gentle face of Corrine as she read a poem about the strength and character of the sturdy tree. That had been a long time ago . . .

As Reverend McNeil continued, Basil felt a great peace—more than that—a warm hopefulness. He was no longer an outsider in the little church; he was one with his neighbors, hoping and waiting for the Christ Child to bring a new birth to the world—to his own barren soul.

When the sermon was concluded, a sacred-like hush lay over the entire congregation. The little choir began to sing softly:

My faith looks up to thee,
Thou Lamb of Calvary,
Saviour divine,
While Life's dark maze I tread
And griefs around me spread,

May thy rich grace impart
Strength to my fainting heart.

Then they shifted quickly to the exultant strains of "O Come All Ye Faithful."

The minister bowed his head, and closed the black Bible before him. He had found little use, this particular Christmas eve, for the Holy Book. As he lifted his eyes to the congregation and picked out the face of Basil Thayer, he knew that he had succeeded in delivering his message.

When the song was finished, the people began filing out of the church and heading toward their homes. There was much to be done.

Basil and Uncle Bill were silent as they walked down the snowy slope. Nothing needed to be said. When they reached the door of Basil's cabin, Uncle Bill spoke.

"Ah knows it ain't right tuh be alone on Christmas, Suh . . . Ah'd be happy tuh stay heah with you, if you want me to . . ."

Basil smiled and shook his head. "No thanks, Uncle. I know that you want to be with your people, and somehow, I don't feel very much alone, just now. I think I would have died if I had stayed here tonight. But that sermon opened my eyes . . ."

Timing the Federal Budget

The change-over from an outgoing to an incoming administration involves many difficulties which seem to be inherent in the situation. But there is one matter—the making of the federal budget—where a particularly acute set of problems might be avoided through different timing.

As the national budget is now operated, it covers a fiscal year beginning July 1 and ending the following June 30. Naturally enough, the preparation of any such budget must begin almost a full year ahead. Congress takes up to six months and more to pass upon the recommendations of the president's Budget Bureau.

Inevitably, therefore, when a new administration comes in on the traditional inauguration date, January 20, it must build on and re-shape budget proposals which already will have gone to Congress.

This is the problem that now confronts President-elect Kennedy, as it did President Eisenhower eight years ago.

Government and other specialists in public finance should perhaps explore the possibility of converting the budget to a calendar year basis.

One obvious disadvantage is, of course, that the new administration would be in power a full year before a budget of its own making took force. But consider how it is now:

From next January 20 to June 30, Kennedy will be operating with a budget approved by Congress under Eisenhower in the spring and summer of 1960. For the next 12 months after that, he will have a budget basically drafted by his predecessors, with some modifications by him.

There does not seem to be great advantage in this system.

On the other hand, if the budget were framed on a calendar year footing, it would put an end to the business of grafting an incoming regime's proposals onto those prepared by the outgoing administration.

To be sure, the experts would have to work at top speed the first year to get the budget in shape for passage during the normal session of Congress.

But, more and more in recent times, the lawmakers have tended to dally on money matters anyway. Often they have not finished approving appropriations when the new fiscal year starts, and special carry-over resolutions have had to be adopted to keep the government in funds.

In the long run, this plan would free Congress of the July 1 deadline it frequently fails to meet. And it would allow the new administration to draft a first budget which was not a hybrid but all its own.

Mahoney Meets Man With Red Auto

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Michael Mahoney, age 3, grandson of Mrs. Florence Mahoney of Georgetown, D. C., paid an official call the other day on Caroline Kennedy, also age 3. He did not find Miss Kennedy receiving callers. She was taking a nap. But he did find the President-elect, his feet on a table, his ear glued to the telephone, his eyes on a TV set. "Who are you?" asked the President-elect as the young man walked in.

"I'm Mahoney," replied the caller, who, though only 3, is a man's man.

The two men soon got down to business. They were not interested in filling a Cabinet position. They were interested in a new red automobile.

"This is how you steer," explained the President-elect.

Mr. Mahoney had never heard the word "steer" before but he was willing to be steered around the room.

"And this pedal puts you in reverse," explained the President-elect.

Again Mr. Mahoney had never heard the word "reverse," let alone putting himself into reverse. But he was glad to be put in reverse by the President-elect.

In the end, Michael did not get to see Caroline. She remained asleep. But he did have quite a time with the President-elect of the United States.

On the way home, Michael's grandmother explained the importance of the man whom he had visited, the fact that he would soon be governing the most powerful nation in the world. Michael listened carefully. Next day he said:

"I want to go see that man."

"What man?" asked his grandmother.

"That man with the automobile."

GI Families Come Home

American service wives with their families will soon begin flying home at the rate of 15,000 per month in order to stop the drain on the American dollar.

This has created so many hardship cases that the armed services have decided that in some instances it is better to transfer husbands back to the United States than to separate husband and wife. This is because many wives have no families to go back to, would be at a loss in locating in new homes. Rather than have a soldier beset with worry over his wife and children, therefore, some GIs may be transferred back to the United States.

It is one of the most upsetting operations the services have experienced since the end of the Korean War.

Meanwhile, the Commerce Department has some significant figures on the amount of U.S. dollars invested abroad, most of which compete with American products and curtail the export of American goods abroad.

At the end of 1959, total U.S. direct investments abroad amounted to $30 billion, and it's estimated that by the end of 1960 they will be close to $32 billion. This is considerably more than the $18 billion in gold now in reserve in the U.S.A. The profits on these investments run around $3.2 billion annually, of which around $1 billion will be plowed back into foreign operations.

Most American companies pay just about as high corporate taxes on their investments in Western Europe as they do in this country. But taxes in Latin America, Asia and Africa are much lower. Generally it pays to keep dollar profits abroad rather than bring them back to the United States as American GI

PEORIA JOURNAL-STAR: Battling Over the Bare Facts of Education.—There are, indeed, signs these days that Americans are taking a renewed interest in educational matters.

Just the other night, for instance, 700 parents turned out for a meeting at York, Pa., to discuss a heated scholastic topic.

The issue was, Resolved, that skirts with hemlines above the knees are indecent. Principal William N. Craley of Central Union High School took the affirmative—in fact, he'd warned female students to show a little less knee or else.

Well, you would have thought Principal Craley proposed the teaching of communism. Of the 700 persons at the meeting, 650 indicated they thought Craley and the whole school administration ought to be thrown out. There was no report of any controversy over reading, writing or arithmetic.

Red Activity In Africa Threatens UN

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press News Analyst

Soviet activities in Africa, coupled with Moscow's pressures and blandishments among African leaders, threaten the very existence of the United Nations in its present form.

It is all too easy to imagine some possible results over not too long a period. The U. N., still in its teens, could become a doddering old wreck, unable of effective action. Worse than that, there is even a possibility of a sort of African Korea.

Some of the nations which supplied troops for an effort to restore peace and order in the Congo now are withdrawing them. What would happen if most withdrew the troops they had assigned to the U. N. mission? In all probability there would be attempts to fill the resulting void, and in such attempts could be the beginning of catastrophe for the heart of Africa.

The Kremlin seems to be playing a cynical game with the African continent. And there are few signs that certain African leaders suspect they are being used for the aims of Soviet world policy.

Puzzled Westerners frequently express wonder why leaders of former colonial countries often seem willing to accept Soviet propaganda and seem deliberately to close their eyes to ultimate Communist designs.

The answer probably is that the Kremlin promises something for each of them. In return, the Kremlin makes sure there is something to be gained from each of them.

Luckily for the Russians, and unfortunately for the West, some African political leaders seem more preoccupied with their own ambitions than with attempting to dissipate the shadow of calamity over the continent.

How do the Russians line up African leaders' support?

Take Gamal Abdel Nasser, for example. His Pan-Arab and Pan-

Islamic ambitions involve a huge area of the continent. Nasser is anxious also to exert a commanding interest in embattled Algeria.

The Russians and Red Chinese loudly support the Algerian Nationalist revolution against France. This places the Communists and the most powerful of Arab leaders on the same side in that argument. By implication, it places the Western powers in an opposed camp. The arrangement is convenient both for the Russians and the Arab leaders.

Take the leaders of Ghana and Guinea in West Africa. They apparently are ambitious to be spokesmen for all emerging black Africa. The Russians have encouraged these ambitions and in return have won Guinean and Ghanaian support for Red maneuvers in the heart of the continent.

The Russians have done well in wooing these leaders, but they still are not satisfied. They are demanding more and more of what they call unity against "criminal plans of the imperialists in the Congo."

Should they succeed, the Russians will have reached the point where they can reduce the U. N. to a skeleton of what it is supposed to be, a tattered copy of its defunct predecessor, the League of Nations.

The Doctor's Mailbag

To Puff or Not to Puff-- Here Are the Arguments

By Harold Thomas Hyman, M.D.

"Can you write a good article," asks a Palm Beach correspondent "on how to quit smoking? I've been smoking since I was 15 years old and now I'm past my 50th birthday. I've tried everything, including advertised proprietaries, that only make me dizzy."

I don't know if I can write a "good article," dear lady, but I can give you a concise summary of official views that favor and oppose your continuance of smoking. Then, the rest is up to you.

On July 20, 1960, the Tobacco Institute released a pamphlet entitled "Tobacco and the Health of the Nation." This pamphlet "gives facts and figures from U.S. government and other sources showing the tremendous advances made in the health of our people since the beginning of this century."

It calls to the attention of those who attack cigarettes that "these health improvements also have occurred during the same period that the cigarette was constantly gaining widespread favor as the most popular form of tobacco use."

In support of its conclusions, the leaflet points out that: "More Americans are living longer than ever before."

"Death rates from major lung ailments in 1900 were 700 per cent higher than they are today, with lung cancer included."

"Since 1928, age-adjusted death rates for major heart diseases, . . . have declined. . . and now are lower than at any other period in this century."

"The average height and weight of young men have shown a steady increase since 1900."

The press release concludes with a statement from E. F. Raglund, vice president of the institute, who believes that "those who are against tobacco will probably continue to scare the life out of those who like tobacco — regardless of the facts."

Copies of this pamphlet may be obtained, without cost, by addressing the Tobacco Institute, Inc., 910 Seventeenth Street, N.W., Washington 6, D. C.

Opinions of those whom Raglund characterizes as being "against tobacco" have been summarized in the official journals of the American Cancer Society (CA) and the American Heart Assn.

Conceding that "it is true, of course, that there is no mathematical proof that cigarette smoking causes lung cancer," CA states that available facts justify the conclusion "that cigarette smoking is the major causative factor in lung cancer."

This conclusion is seconded by the Public Health Cancer Assn., the Study Group on Smoking and Health, the British Medical Research Council, the surgeon general of the U.S. Public Health Service, the Swedish Medical Research Council, the commissioner of the New York State Health Department and the director of the California State Department of Public Health.

In addition, the Committee on Smoking and Cardiovascular Disease of the American Heart Assn. reports that although "statistical association does not prove that heavy cigarette smoking causes coronary heart disease, the data strongly suggest that heavy cigarette smoking may contribute to, or accelerate, the development of coronary heart disease or its complications."

There you are, dear lady. It's your heart. They're your lungs. It's your life. And you're a fortunate citizen of a free society.

If you're impressed by what Mr. Raglund and his associates have to say, puff away merrily. But, if you think there's food

Attention Latin America

Mexico Sets Example How To Carry on Revolution

By HAROLD LAVINE
(DP&R Special Service)

MEXICO CITY — Mexico is celebrating the 50th anniversary of the revolution that overthrew the dictatorship of Porfirio Diaz. This is the revolution that Mexicans call The Revolution, and it's still going on. For the slender, young intellectual who started it, Francisco I. Madero, didn't set out merely to establish a democracy in Mexico; he also wanted to make Mexico over, socially and economically. He recognized that democracy cannot long exist in a nation where poverty and illiteracy are universal, as they were in Mexico then.

Cuba is now in the midst of a revolution, too; and, in Cuba, Fidel Castro professes to have precisely the same objectives as the Mexican revolution. However, the resemblance stops right there. Castro has brought Cuba only turmoil and terror. Mexico, in contrast, today is a thriving democracy, with a burgeoning industry, a growing middle class, an ever-rising standard of living.

For the rest of Latin America, which faces essentially the same problems, Mexico and Cuba provide an object lesson in how to carry on a revolution—and how not to.

Mexico, like Cuba, has a land-reform program. In Cuba, the government simply grabbed the great estates, without compensation, and converted them into collectives. Castro calls these collectives "cooperatives."

In theory, the peasants now own them. In practice, nothing has changed for the peasant except his boss. He worked for wages before, he works for wages now. In Mexico, the government pays for the land, and distributes it among the peasants. From a nation of peons, Mexico is becoming a nation of independent small farmers.

The Mexican revolution has socialist overtones. The government believes that basic industries should be owned by the government. However, where Castro just goes out and seizes industries, Mexico buys them at a fair price. Only recently, for example, Mexico nationalized the electric light and power industry. It accomplished this by going into the stock markets of the world and buying up shares until it had control.

Castro has not held an election in Cuba since he came to power. The Constitution of 1940 is a dead letter. Cuba now operates under what Castro calls "Revolutionary Law." Any criticism of Castro is considered "counter-revolutionary activity." A man can be thrown into jail without charges; he can be kept in jail for months without trial. And trials in Cuba are a farce; they usually take five or ten minutes.

Castro justifies this by saying that he must protect the revolution from its enemies. And there are some even in the United States who agree with him. The fact remains, however, that Mexico has been able to carry on its revolution within the framework of democracy. Mexico has complete freedom of speech, of press, of assembly. Those accused of crimes are protected by legal safeguards. Elections are held regularly, and they are just about as fair as those in the United States.

The Party of Revolutionary Institutions usually wins the elections, and this has led some to question the virility of Mexican democracy. However, the PRI is not a monolithic party like those in totalitarian countries. Within the PRI, there are factions as divergent as Barry Goldwater and Hubert Horatio Humphrey. Former President Lazaro Cardenas heads one group: He believes The Revolution isn't moving fast enough. Former President Miguel Aleman heads another: A conservative, he believes The Revolution is moving entirely too fast. President Adolfo Lopez Mateos steers a course about midway between them.

Castro is making great headway throughout Latin America, for Castro's kind of revolution is more exciting than Mexico's; it, therefore has greater appeal, especially to university students and to youth, generally. However, Mexico's kind works. If the nations of Latin America are to have any future, they will follow Mexico's course, not Castro's.

Having just gone into her own apartment the woman bought an electric toaster—it was the first one she had ever had —and it just didn't work so she called the store where she bought it and told them.

"Are you sure you have it plugged in?" she was asked.

It was an embarrassing moment. That was what was wrong with it. It didn't work because she didn't have it plugged in. — H. L.

The birthday celebration for the little boy who was four years old, was held ahead of time. So when his grandmother wished him a happy birthday on his anniversary he thought she was a little behind time.

"This isn't my birthday," he told her. "My birthday was the other day."

"No, your birthday is today," she said. "You just celebrated it a little early."

Birthday or no birthday, he was glad to get the gift of money she had for him.

It seemed that the family had decided to give him money and when it was all added up it was about $17.

"My," said the grandmother. "What are you going to do with all of that money?"

There was no hesitation in his reply. "Well," he said. "I guess I'll do my Christmas shopping."

Columnist Raps Royal Husbands

LONDON (AP)—Prince Philip was publicly accused today of being "openly arrogant" and his brother-in-law Anthony Armstrong-Jones rapped for taking life too easy since he married Princess Margaret.

The criticisms came from the barbed pen of one of Britain's most widely read columnists, William Neil Conner, who writes in the Daily Mirror under the pseudonym Cassandra.

"Prince Philip is immensely able, publicly charming," Cassandra wrote of Queen Elizabeth's husband.

But he added: "In addition to possessing this theater royal, Drury Lane, glamor, he is openly arrogant, and occasionally an expert in the deadly art of being able to offend and get away with it most of the time."

Princess Margaret's husband was described as one of the Jones boys "and therefore has a bank balance of good will in every home in the land because of his name."

But if he ever elected to take a title, then beware, the columnist warned.

"So far he has played it safe. Not only has he played it safe but he has played it slow."

The royal family has what to most people would be an intolerable burden of duties, noted the Mirror. "Real heavy on the collar stuff that needs a lot of solid carthorse pulling."

"Mr. Armstrong-Jones is the new shire horse that seems to rest a little too often on the shafts."

Kennedy's Vote Edge Is 144,844

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. John F. Kennedy's popular vote plurality over Vice President Richard M. Nixon stood at 144,844 today out of a total vote of 68,694,754 tabulated so far.

The figures compiled by The Associated Press are based on official returns from 42 states and unofficial returns from all except 84 precincts in the other 8 states. The missing precincts: Arizona 75 and West Virginia 9.

The other six states yet to certify official results are Idaho, Illinois, Massachusetts, New York, Pennsylvania and Rhode Island.

With Republican recount efforts still pending in Texas and Cook County, Ill., the popular vote now stands: Kennedy 34,189,718; Nixon 34,044,874; Others 460,162.

The electoral vote still stands at 300 for Kennedy and 223 for Nixon, with 269 required to win. Republican leaders say they expect Kennedy to have a majority when the electors meet in the various state capitals Dec. 19, but are proceeding with recount efforts anyway.

City Water Is Improved At Windsor

The Windsor water situation has improved, it was reported at the meeting of the Board of Aldermen Tuesday night, but as yet the source of possible contamination had not been found.

The last five samples sent to the state Division of Health showed all but one to be free of contamination. Previously all five samples were bad. The city has three wells but only one has been reported unfavorable by the state department.

A request has been made that a state health department engineer be sent there to confer on the water situation to bring about continued improvement.

The official canvass of the special election Nov. 8 on three propositions was made with the following results:

Extension of city limits: For 678, against 282, majority of 396 for.

Increasing garbage tax one-half mill: For 620, against 370, majority for 250.

For 5-mill tax increase for street improvement: For 574, against 404, majority for 170.

Dissatisfaction was reported by board members of the operation of the city water department. Mayor Harry Douglas suggested the board's water committee talk with Commissioner Ivan Harvey and report their detailed suggestions for improvement at the next board meeting. It was suggested that Howard Harvey be assigned to repairing and replacing defective meters.

Tables Turned As Women Picket Union Quarters

ANDERSON, Ind. (AP)—A small band of women, members of United Auto Workers Local 633, reversed the normal pattern Thursday and picketed their own union headquarters here in protest over lack of seniority rights.

The women, who marched in below freezing temperature, said the demonstration stemmed from the recent layoffs of a number of women at the General Motors Lamp Division here.

They are seeking the same seniority rights granted male employees at the plant and women workers at other General Motors plants in Anderson.

A union spokesman, Norman Goodwin, declined to comment until consulting UAW officers.

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Portland public schools today banned future Easter programs.

Supt. Jack Edwards also said that baccalaureate services no longer will be held in Protestant churches, but in the school buildings.

Objections from those of the Catholic and Jewish faiths brought the change, Edwards said. He added there also has been some objection to Christmas programs in the schools, but these will be continued.

The baccalaureate services will include speakers from Protestant, Catholic and Jewish faiths, Edwards said.

Accidents

Ralph Connor, 20 of Route 3, Sedalia, received minor injuries about 7:30 p.m. Thursday when his car overturned on the West Sixteenth Road as he attempted to avoid striking a parked hay truck on the road. The automobile, a 1955 Chevrolet Belaire sedan, was extensively damaged.

Connor reported to State Troopers Pete Stohr and Bill Southwick of the Highway Patrol, he came upon the truck which did not have lights and applied his brakes and swerved to miss it. The Chevrolet went off the shoulder on the left side of the road and the wheels came back onto the blacktop, it went into a skid, overturned on its top and went into the ditch on the right side of the road, landing on its top.

J. D. Hoskins, 134, East Walnut, driver of the truck which is owned by Charles Needy, Route 4, told the Troopers that he was headed east with a load of hay and the fuel pump quit working. The truck was left parked in its lane on the blacktop while he came on in to town to get someone to repair it. Hoskins was gone a little longer than he anticipated and darkness came shortly before he returned.

Tigers Champion Big Eight Team; Kansas Ruled Out

Committee Finds Jayhawks Violated Recruiting Rules

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The University of Kansas lost its Big Eight football championship Thursday on an ineligible ruling against its star halfback Bert Coan.

The Big Eight's faculty committee found Kansas violated league rules in recruiting Coan and ordered the Jayhawks to forfeit their last two victories—over Colorado and Missouri.

This gave the football championship to Missouri, beaten by Kansas in the season finale. The Tigers, who play Navy in the Orange Bowl, won their first nine games and the forfeit gives them a 10-0 record.

Colorado, defeated 34-6 by Kansas, moved into second place in the official standings at 6-1. Kansas dropped to third with four victories, two losses and one tie.

The NCAA imposed a one-year football probation on Kansas Oct. 26 on a charge three of its football players were illegally recruited.

A former Kansas athlete, it was charged, took Coan to Chicago in 1958 for the All-Star football game after he played freshman football at Texas Christian.

That violated the NCAA and Big Eight rules against excessive entertainment.

The alumnus who took Coan to Chicago was Bud Adams, who has controlling interest in the Houston Oilers of the American Football League.

At the time of the football probation the NCAA also invoked a two-year basketball probation against Kansas on charges that boosters bought an automobile for Wilt (The Stilt) Chamberlain, now a pro star with the Philadelphia Warriors.

Officials at Kansas contended the NCAA action did not affect Coan's eligibility and the fleet, 200 pound halfback from Pasadena, Tex., played in two subsequent conference games. He starred against Missouri.

The Big Eight ruled he was ineligible for football from Oct. 26, 1960, to Oct. 25, 1961, so he will miss the first five games next season. The ruling does not keep him from competing as a sprinter on the track team.

Coach Jack Mitchell, Coan and Adams appeared before the faculty committee.

Chancellor Clarke Wescoe of Kansas said he feels the conference action was not just.

"I'm disturbed," Dr. Wescoe said. "I hope this ends the harassment of KU."

Coan commented:

"I don't know what I'm guilty of."

Two transfer students from Texas A&M Jim Street and Mickey Walker were involved in the penalty assessed by the NCAA but were not involved in the Big Eight case because they dropped out of school.

The faculty committee changed its rules to permit a member in good standing with the NCAA to play an eleventh game with the University of Hawaii or the University of Alaska. The old rule limited teams to 10 regular season football games and only one team was allowed to play in a bowl each year.

A request by Oklahoma that it be permitted to play Hawaii next season was denied by the faculty in May. Oklahoma is on indefinite football probation by the NCAA and will have to clear up that status before it can meet the Honolulu school.

The faculty completes its regular December meeting today with routine business.

Coan will not be eligible for Kansas' games next season with TCU, Wyoming, Colorado, Iowa State and Oklahoma. He will be eligible to play against Oklahoma State, Nebraska, Kansas State, California and Missouri.

The conference cited Kansas for violation of these rules:

"All funds for the recruiting of prospective student-athletes shall be deposited with the member institution. The institution shall be exclusively and entirely responsible for the manner in which it expends the funds.

"No member institution may arrange for or permit excessive entertainment of any prospective student-athlete on the campus or elsewhere.

"Off-campus trips for prospective students may not be provided or arranged by a member school, its alumni, or other means."

Reaves Peters, executive director of the Big Eight, said it was the "toughest case to come before us in history." He did not elaborate.

Fred Hageman, Kansas' All-Big Eight center and one of the Jayhawks' tri-captains, said:

"We still feel we won the championship. "Naturally we are disappointed, but of course the Big Eight has to take action it feels is right."

Pointing out Kansas' decisive victories over Colorado and Missouri, Hageman said:

"If they can change those scores let them do it. I was there playing and I remember."

At Columbia, Mo., the Tigers' All America end, Danny LaRose, said:

"The honor of winning the championship is great, but we would have liked it better if we had won it on the field."

Christmas Tournament Scheduled

The MIAA Christmas tournament will be held December 28, 29, and 30, at the Garrison Gymnasium, Central Missouri State College. Participating in the tournament will be Kirksville, Rolla, Warrensburg, Cape Girardeau, Springfield, and Maryville, all of the MIAA, and guest teams Arkansas State Teacher's College of Conway, Ark., and Northeastern Oklahoma State College, Tahlequah, Okla.

Pairing will be released about December 15. The activities of the tournament will begin December 27, when the squads will hold practice sessions. Each school is expected to bring a squad of twelve men, and the tournament officials and coaches will hold a banquet for the men on the evening of the 27th.

Outstanding prospects for the tournament include the appearance of two first-team all conference players from last year, Larry Swift and Carl Ritter. Swift, at 6' 6", and 205 pounds, is performing at a good clip for Kirksville so far this year, showing a two-game average of 16.5 points. Ritter, who performs for Cape, is a 6' 2" 175 pound senior who scored 10 points in the season opener against Western Kentucky.

Lincoln, Bunceton, Chamois Win In Tipton Tournament

California, Pilot Grove and Stover were eliminated from the Tipton Invitational Basketball Tournament Thursday night on respective wins by Lincoln, Bunceton and Chamois.

Possibly the most thrilling action of the evening came in the Lincoln-California clash. In the final seconds of the game, with the score tied, a Lincoln foul put Strickfaden at the free throw line with a one and one situation.

Strickfaden missed. Lincoln took the ball to the far end of the court where a mix-up led to a

Cage Season 2 Games Old For Mules

The basketball season at Central Missouri State College is two games old. The Mules have defeated two non-conference opponents, Ottawa University, Ottawa, Kan., and Pittsburg State, Pittsburg, Kan.

The two game offensive average for the Mules is a fine 81 points, while the opponents have scored an average of only 64 points. An outstanding performance in the first game, against Ottawa, by freshman Bud Vallino, lowing their tenth annual meeting on the CMSC campus.

Sunday afternoon, Dec. 13, will be the annual ceremony of the Hanging of the Greens at Todd and Yeater Halls. The ceremony is always an impressive one. This year should be no exception, and many of the student body are expected to attend.

Picking Favorite At Coral Gables Poses a Problem

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—With 36 entrants shooting sub par golf for the first round, picking a favorite for the second round of the $20,000 Coral Gables Open Golf Tournament today was like picking the best bean out of a bushel.

John Barnum, veteran pro from Grand Rapids, Mich., was in front by one stroke.

Arnold Palmer, the big money-man of pro golf this year, was only three strokes back of Barnum's six-under-par 65. So was Sam Snead, the ageless hillbilly now playing out of Boca Raton, Fla.

They weren't the closest. Marty Furgol of Lemont, Ill., and Jim Turnesa of Rye, N.Y., were just one stroke back at 66. Tom Garity of Kansas City, Mo.; Don Massingale of Jacksboro, Tex.; Gardner Dickinson Jr., of Palm Beach, Fla., and Bob Goalby of Crystal River, Fla., were in the 67 bracket.

Johnny Pott, Shreveport, La., star who won the West Palm Beach Open last Sunday, carded a 73.

Claims Strategy Is to Foul Wilt In Many Games

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Coach Neil Johnston of the Philadelphia Warriors said today the strategy of many teams in the National Basketball Association is to foul high-scoring Wilt Chamberlain to keep him from shooting because of his poor record at the free throw line.

But, added the Warriors' coach, that strategy backfired Thursday night when Chamberlain made 12 of 21 free throws — which is good for him — and 4 of 5 in the final two minutes to lead Philadelphia to a 114-111 victory over New York. In all, Chamberlain dumped in 46 points.

The Warriors victory, coupled with Boston's 118-115 loss to Cincinnati, moved them into first place in the Eastern Division a half game ahead of the Celtics. Oscar Robertson and Jack Twyman, getting 36 points each, sparked the Cincinnati victory.

Don Carter Moves Into Keg Spotlight

CHICAGO (AP) — Don Carter, one of the nation's top-ranked bowlers, moved back into the spotlight in the World's Invitational Tournament today.

The St. Louis star and world's defending champion, took over the runnerup spot in the finals Thursday night after a brilliant performance in his three four-game matches.

Carter and the other 15 finalists resume shooting in the third round of the five-day match game competition in the Chicago Coliseum today. Four matches are booked, with the same schedule Saturday and two Sunday will wind up the the $48,000 marathon tourney. The winner will get $7,500.

Carter was in championship form Thursday as he moved from ninth to second place, less than two points behind the leader, Steve Nagy of St. Louis.

The defending champion, who averaged 225-plus in his 12 games, swept his final eight games.

Nagy, the 1954-55 All-Star champion, won three matches Thursday and going into today's head-to-head play had won 17 games, 39-2 -s, 1-7. Carter's record was to-head play had won 17 games and lost 7. Carter's record was 14 1/2-9 1/2.

The 16 women finalists also were in a tight race for the lead.

Kentucky in Bold Bid To Get Grid Talent

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — In perhaps its boldest bid for football talent in a decade, Kentucky has lured eight Alabama school boys stars and signed two standouts the Crimson Tide sought in the Blue Grass State.

The Alabama camp greeted the move with silence. Kentucky brass called it a hunt for good players. Most fans figured it was to repay Bama for enticing away a pair of young giants from Kentucky last year.

It appeared to be Kentucky's most expansive recruiting in a single area since West Virginia and Pennsylvania each supplied a half-dozen aces to stock the Wildcats' 1950 Sugar Bowl champs.
